What's Inside

Celebrate Seuss

W. T. Sampson Elementary is honoring the 99th Birthday of Dr. Seuss by hosting a Read Across America Day on March 7. Find out how you can help in the celebration.

Marriage - Not Always a Piece of Cake

When the romance is over, the real marriage begins. With perseverance, commitment and realistic expectations, you can make the journey from the honeymoon suite to those front porch rocking chairs of your golden years a pleasant one.

See page 7

IT DON'T GTMO BETTER.. OR DOES IT?

"It Don't GTMO Better" is being put to the test as improvements to the base Lyceum march on. The new refreshment building should make movie-goers happy since they won't have to step out of sight of the screen to satisfy those crunchy-cravings, or that desire for a thirst quenching liquid refreshment. Work also continues on the "balcony" stands at the rear of the lyceum. But, that's not all. There's even more coming our way. See page 6.

Force Protection

Lock all quarters entrances at night, including storage rooms. Keep the house locked, even if you are at home. Let's keep GTMO secure!

Acting SECNAV Releases Messages to Sailors, Marines

The following is a message from the new Acting Secretary of the Navy Hansford T. Johnson to Department of the Navy uniformed and civilian personnel:

*Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Installations and Environment Hansford T. Johnson, and currently Acting Secretary of the Navy.

“Greetings. On Feb. 7, 2003, President George W. Bush named me acting Secretary of the Navy. Our Navy and Marine Corps team has a remarkable history of service and dedication to our nation, and I am honored and proud to serve as your secretary.

The President of the United States and the Secretary of Defense have noted this is a time of great consequence for our country. Fortunately, our department has been blessed with the great leadership of Secretary of the Navy Gordon R. England and Under Secretary Susan M. Livingstone during these historic times. We salute these two great Americans for their service and vision as they leave the Department of the Navy and look forward to meeting the challenges still facing our Navy-Marine Corps team.

Chief of Naval Operations Adm. Vern Clark, Commandant of the Marine Corps Gen. Michael Hagee and I pledge to keep the Navy and Marine Corps at the forward edge of our military’s transformation and focused on our combat capability. We will focus on our preparations to carry out our mission and equipping our men and women in uniform with the tools they need to fight and win.

To each of you who dedicate your lives to protect and serve our nation, I pledge my greatest efforts to improve your quality of workplace as well as your quality of life. The leadership team will work to ensure you are prepared and equipped to accomplish your mission. We are positive these investments, as they have for 227 years, will pay great dividends for America. Together, we will meet every challenge. It is my honor to serve you. Semper fidelis and sail proud!”

SECNAV Safety Message

Safety Of Our Most Treasured Asset At Home And Abroad

“During my tenure as your Acting Secretary, and your new Safety Chief, we will continue Secretary England’s strong safety legacy that impacted every Sailor, Marine and DON Civilian.

Safety is much more than a program; it is leadership in action. Safety should never be viewed as an obstacle, but rather a measure of how successful we are. Our safety culture reflects the value we place on taking care of ourselves as well as the priority we place on protecting those for whom we are responsible. Safety is not an option, nor is it a check in a box. It must become part of everything we do.

Whether deployed or at home - safety and risk management must be part of every decision made and every action taken. Individual actions influence others. Your decisions affect the over-all safety culture and operational readiness of your organization. Please review your work and off duty habits from a risk management standpoint. Be observant; communicate, ask questions and help educate those around you.

You truly are the Department of the Navy’s most treasured asset. Rest assured that safety will play a critical part of every decision made by my office. Each of you must take ownership of safety and make risk management a key part of your daily routine as well. May God bless you and your families. Sail Safe and Semper Fi.”

Honorable Hansford T. Johnson, Acting Secretary of the Navy

NEWS BRIEFS

QOL Meeting Mar. 5

The next Quality of Life Management Board meeting is March 5, 1:30pm in Classroom B and C in Bulkeley Hall. The board and meeting are open to all interested parties - military and civilian. All Tenant Commands and Departments should have a representative present.

Please forward all issues to AGC(AW/SW) VALLE by fax at 4683 or e-mail at weather1@usnbgmto.navy.mil one week before the meeting. He will then forward questions to the concerned parties to investigate and report their findings at the meeting.

After reviewing the minutes from the previous meeting, new issues will be discussed. MWR, NEX, PWD, and Housing will then be given an opportunity to brief on any new QOL items of interest for the board.

Meeting are expected to last no more than one hour. If time permits, questions that did not reach AGC Valle before the meeting will also be addressed. If no time remains, these question will be held until the next meeting.

Tax Center Open

The Naval Base Tax Center is open. and located in Building 760 inside the Legal Assistance Office. Hours of operation are Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9am to 5pm and Tuesdays and Thursdays from 9am to 7pm. Additionally, we plan to open on two Saturdays a month. Call 4314 to make an appointment.

Advancement Exams

The Navy-wide Advancement Exams will be held in the Windjammer on the following dates:

- March 6 – E6 Exam
- March 13 – E5 Exam
- March 20 – E4 Exam

All candidates must verify and sign their worksheets no later than Feb. 25. Personnel who have not signed their worksheets will not be allowed to take the exam.

On the day of your exam, you must be at the exam site no later than 7am in the uniform of the day and have your military ID card. Doors will be secured at 7:30am. Those arriving after 7:30am will not be allowed to participate in the exam and will be ineligible to take the substitute exam.

*A Reader's Oath
I promise to read
Each day and each night.
I know it's the key
To growing up right.
I'll read to myself,
I'll read to a crowd.
It makes no difference
If silent or loud.
I'll read at my desk,
At home and at school,
On my bean bag or bed,
By the fire or pool.
Each book that I read
Puts smarts in my head,
'Cause brains grow more thoughts
The more they are fed.
So I take this oath
To make reading my way
Of feeding my brain
What it needs every day.

W. T. Sampson to Hold Seuss-abration in March

For the past six years, the National Education Association (NEA) has honored the March birthday of Dr. Seuss (aka Theodor Geisel) with the a national reading day called "Read Across America."

The children and teachers at W. T. Sampson Elementary school are holding its "Read Across America" day on Friday, March 7. A kick-off celebration is scheduled at the school's lyceum at 8:15am and throughout the day, service members and community volunteers from around the base will be making guest appearances in classrooms to read Dr. Seuss books to the children.

According the NEA, Dr. Seuss books, with their use of rhyme, make effective reading tools for teaching young children the basic skills they need to be successful readers. When you celebrate the words and rhymes of Dr. Seuss, the message is clear that reading is not only important, but also lots of fun.

NEA's Read Across America is the biggest one-day literacy celebration in the U.S., if not the world. In 2002, there were reading events in all 50 states, as well as several foreign countries, that attracted nearly 40 million readers of all ages. The annual motivation and awareness program calls for every child in every community to celebrate reading. Providing children with motivation to read is an important factor in student achievement and creating successful, lifelong readers. Research has shown that children who are motivated and spend more time reading do better in school.

If you've ever shared a book with a child, you know the joy and excitement this small but meaningful act can bring. But did you know that, according to the National Center for Education Statistics, only 53 percent of children ages three to five were read to daily by a family member?

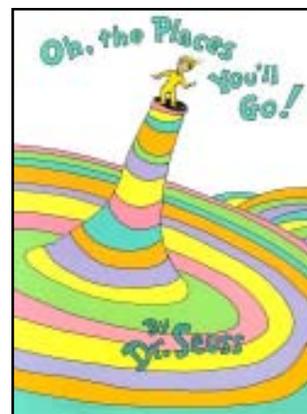

Reading is a skill that must be taught, supported, and sustained. Supporting children's reading activities—even simply reading daily with a child—requires substantial commitment from parents, older brothers and sisters, and other caring adults. The effort may be great, but so are the rewards:

- Children who are read to at home have a higher success rate in school.
- Children who read frequently develop stronger reading skills.

Please join us – and millions of children, parents, educators, policy-makers, and business leaders across the country – in celebrating NEA's Read Across America on March 7, and in supporting children's literacy.

Everyone can help brighten our children's lives through books. There are opportunities for you to volunteer, to read and to share your life experiences. Let's all join together on March 7 - and every day thereafter - to ensure that GTMO's children have caring adults to share books and rich reading experiences.

Vacation Like the Rich and Famous

from LifeLines2000.com

Are you envious of those travel channel people who vacation in luxurious resorts around the world? Wish you could vacation in a luxury resort, too? Well, turn off the TV and let's go.

Members of the Armed Forces, their families, and other members of the total Defense Force can stay in any of four Armed Forces Recreation Center (AFRC) resorts around the world. Operated by the U.S. Army, AFRC resorts offer affordable Morale, Welfare, and Recreation (MWR) facilities at ideal vacation destinations. The resorts are fully funded by revenues generated by their operations.

Your choices include the Hale Koa Hotel in Honolulu, Hawaii, and the Shades of Green Hotel at Disney World in Orlando, Fla. Feel like taking in Europe? Check out the Garmisch or Chiemsee resorts in southern Germany. If the Far East intrigues you, try the Dragon Hill Lodge in Seoul, Korea.

Reservations for AFRC resorts can be made online or by calling the reservation desk. Rates are based on pay grade and travel status. Reservation policies vary slightly by location, so be sure to check the website for your destination of choice. Generally, room reservations will not be accepted more than a year in advance of departure date. To ensure equitable use of the hotel, guests may not stay more than 30 consecutive days or register again within the following 90-day period.

Take a virtual tour of the AFRC resorts by logging

The Hale Koa Hotel on the beach at Waikiki, Hawaii is just one of the luxurious resorts you could be able to vacation.

on to the LifeLines 2000 website at www.lifelines2000.org/services/articles/20020611/161138.asp.

What Are You Waiting For? Now that we've traveled the world and seen what AFRC offers and how you, too, can vacation in luxury, start planning your trip. Chances are the MWR or Marine Corps Community Services (MCCS) () facility at your destination will have recreational equipment available at a nominal rental fee.

If your schedule is flexible, consider getting there via Space A Travel.

So why are you still sitting in front of your computer? Get going - your luxury vacation is waiting for you.

That's Some Fancy Landscaping

Above: There's something going on in front of the GTMO Mall, but it's not landscaping. Workers are busy constructing a roadside bus stop for NEX patrons, and to keep them from having to climb over the surface pipes that run along that area, a bridge-style walkover is being constructed to allow easy access to the bus stop. The new bus stop is designed to make it safer for pedestrians crossing from the atrium to the parking area in front of the exchange and to cut down on the vehicles parked in the road at the entrance to the exchange.

Right: This view of the construction zone reveals the large bus parking area that parallels Sherman Ave. When completed, this will be the widest point in the longest road on Naval Base GTMO, Sherman Avenue, or "GTMO 1." Also in the plans are a large passenger shelter where riders will wait for the bus.

COOPER FIELD GETS NEW RESTROOM FACILITY

Sports fans and players alike are revelling in the convenience and relief afforded by the brand new restroom facility which is now open at Cooper Field. The lack of any restrooms other than port-o-lets left a lot to be desired for the sports enthusiasts who frequented the facilities throughout the year, not to mention the numerous public events that bring hundreds of residents to Cooper Field. This long-awaited improvement to the local sports facility may just turn out to be a highlight of the year for sports fans.

Marriage: After the Cake Is Cut

from LifeLines2000

Happily ever after begins right after the wedding, right? - Perhaps in movies and fairy tales, but not in real life, and certainly not with the additional challenges that the military brings to a marriage. Romantic love, although known to cause giddiness in young women and loss of all reason in young men, is not the stuff that true marriages are made of. Romance isn't necessarily what sees a marriage through to the 50th wedding anniversary.

According to many relationship experts, romance is an illusion. It is not what real and enduring love is made of. Many people are fooled into thinking that once the romance is gone, the marriage is over. The realization that the real work must begin is often so overwhelming and bitterly disappointing that the relationship is traded in for romance with someone else. Soon the initial excitement of the new romance begins to fade and reality sets in once again. Without commitment and realistic expectations, there is only unhappiness and sadness to look forward to.

Before you say the vows, "For better or for worse, in sickness and in health," think about what they really mean. Do you realize the magnitude of the commitment being made? It is an awesome task when two people come together and carve out a life together. To bring two people's family traditions, attitudes and values together and make them into something that is their own is difficult. It is not something that is done overnight, or found in a manual. It is done when, as a couple, challenges are overcome and a seemingly unmovable mountain is climbed and conquered together. The road begun at an altar, courthouse or under a rose-covered arbor is one that stretches a lifetime. To begin it with little thought of what lies beyond the honeymoon is unwise and only makes the road harder to navigate. So how do you make the journey from the honeymoon suite to the front porch rocking chairs of your golden years? Through perseverance, commitment and realistic expectations of what marriage is really all about.

Be realistic. No one can fully prepare for the meshing of two lives, but it is possible to start out with expectations that are realistic. We aren't born with this information, and it takes effort to replace the romantic notions we may have grown up with, or the fear that may have been created if we witnessed unhappy marriages dissolve.

Nothing is for certain in a marriage except that ... nothing is for certain. All that you can be sure of is your personal commitment to do your part.

The Chaplain Corps has opportunities for newly married or soon-to-be-married couples to invest more in their future than just deposits on reception halls.

They offer various classes through PREP®: The Prevention & Relationship Enhancement Program, and CREDO (Chaplains Religious Enrichment Development Operation).

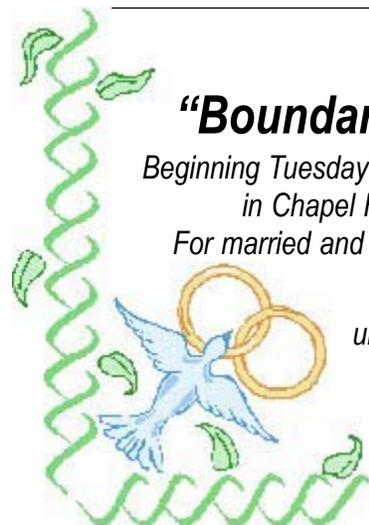

These programs benefit our military families and are well worth the time spent. The effort put into a relationship now will pay off later. Classes and or counseling can help give you a realistic approach to your partner and the effects of the military on your marriage, as well as help you define life goals. By discussing these things, you can help start your new life off in the best possible direction.

You must also realize that there is no such thing as a perfect marriage. Every marriage must be nurtured and worked on by both husband and wife. Small habits that may seem insignificant or even endearing in the beginning can become annoying with time. The strongest of marriages have their trials and low points. The successful ones are forged and strengthened in the fires of struggle, conflict and life's unexpected twists. Marriages are refined by what you are willing to give and what you are willing to do.

You must realize that love is a verb. It takes action on the part of both husband and wife to make a healthy marriage. It means that sometimes you have to be the one to step back from a conflict or disagreement and offer the olive branch of peace. It means being willing to see the other person's point of view, and being humble enough to allow them to have a differing opinion. You also must understand that although you are committed as one to your marriage, you are still two different and unique individuals. Embracing those differences and not trying to spend all your time changing each other will bring strength and diversity to your relationship. It is, after all, those differences that probably brought you together in the first place.

When your service to the country is complete and you are faced with life beyond the military who is it that will walk into the future with you? You owe it to each other to do all that you can to make sure you are prepared for a lifetime, not just a wedding.

Navy Ships Named in Honor of African Americans

It took more than 168 years after the Continental Congress authorized the first ship of a new Navy for the United Colonies on Oct. 13, 1775, before a ship was named for an African American. The first ships were named after kings (Alfred the Great), patriots (John Hancock), heroes (USS Nathanael Greene), ideals (USS Constitution), institutions (USS Congress), American places (USS Virginia), and small creatures with a potent sting such as Hornet, Wasp.

The first ship named in honor of an African American was the USS Harmon (DE-678), a 1,400-ton destroyer escort, commissioned in August 1943. It was named in honor of Mess Attendant First Class Leonard Roy Harmon, who posthumously was awarded the Navy Cross for heroism during the Battle of Guadalcanal on Nov. 13, 1942. He was killed in action aboard the cruiser the USS San Francisco.

Nine other Navy ships have been named in honor of African Americans. Two are under construction.

The nuclear-powered ballistic missile submarine USS George Washington Carver (SSBN-656) was the next craft named in honor of an African American. The submarine honors scientist George Washington Carver (1864-1943). Commissioned in June 1966, the Carver carried out 73 patrols in the Atlantic area until mid-1991. She was decommissioned in March 1993. The USS Jesse L. Brown (DE-1089 and later FF-1089 and FFT-1089) was named in honor of Ensign Jesse L. Brown, USN (1926-1950). Brown was the first African-American naval aviator, and was killed in action during the Korean War. The USS Miller (DE-1091, later FF-1091) was named in honor of Cook Third Class Doris ("Dorie") Miller. Miller was awarded the Navy Cross for heroism during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941. The Miller was commissioned in June 1973 and was transferred to the Naval Reserve Force in January 1982. She was decommissioned in October 1991.

The USNS (U.S. Naval Ship) Pfc. James Anderson Jr. (T-AK-3002) was named in honor of Marine Pfc. James Anderson Jr., who was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor for heroism during the Vietnam War. A maritime prepositioning ship, the Anderson was built in Denmark in 1979 as the merchant ship Emma Maersk. She's based at Diego Garcia, an island in the Indian Ocean, and carries equipment to support a Marine expeditionary brigade. The guided-missile frigate USS Rodney M. Davis (FFG-60) was named in honor of Marine Sgt. Rodney M. Davis, who was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor for heroism during the Vietnam War.

The USNS Henson (T-AGS-63) was named in honor of the Arctic Explorer Matthew Alexander Henson (1866-1955) who accompanied Robert E. Peary when he was credited with discovering the North Pole in 1909. The Henson was commissioned in 1998. The USNS Watson was named in honor of Army Pvt. George Watson, who was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor for heroism during World War II.

The USS Oscar Austin was named in honor of Marine Pfc. Oscar P. Austin, who was posthumously awarded the Medal of Honor for heroism during the Vietnam War. The Austin is an Arleigh Burke class guided missile destroyer.

A 10th ship honoring an African-American Navy Cross recipient, Navy Cook 3rd Class William Pinckney. The ship is named to honor Pinckney's heroism aboard the aircraft carrier USS Enterprise during the Battle of Santa Cruz in 1942. He survived the battle and died in 1975.

The USS Harmon was the first ship named after an African American. Official U.S. Navy Photograph, now in the Collections of the National Archives.

The tenth ship to be named after an African American, USS Pinckney will be commissioned in early 2004, and homeported in San Diego, Calif.

Yearbook Sponsors Sought

W.T. Sampson High School is searching for organizations, units, clubs, families, or anyone who has $30 to spare, to sponsor a page in the 2003 yearbook.

As a page sponsor, your name will go on the bottom of a yearbook page. Up to 40 words and a logo, may also be added. Sponsors may select a specific page to "adopt." They can adopt a specific sports page, a specific class page, a specific event page, etc.

The 2003 yearbook will differ from the traditional, vertical-style yearbook, and will feature a horizontal binding. This twist of design hopes to maximize photographic space; squeezing in as many pictures of students and their involvement in the community as possible.

Another break from the traditional yearbook design is that this yearbook relies on sponsored pages instead of the usual display advertisements that normally fill the back pages of yearbooks.

Deadline to sponsor pages is Friday, Feb. 21. Call Mr. Smith at 2137.
